It would be helpful for the DOJ to begin looking out for the welfare of the ordinary consumer.
I consider myself to be one of those.
Supposedly, the DOJ is 'protecting' us.
But Microsoft has been a leader in providing good, cheap technology to the average consumer..
meanwhile boosting our economy, encouraging competition and innovation.

It seems the DOJ is intent on running Microsoft out of the country, by continuing to badger it to death.
Would you rather it relocate to China?

Now, the government-sanctioned monopoly of AOL wants to cause even more trouble. Where is the DOJ when a true monopoly shows up?
Clapping its hands.
Surely, a plethora of lawyers see only $$$, with no sense of fairness.

What ever happened to the idea of justice, fairness and encouraging American business?

Please, stop harrassing Microsoft. You are making a travesty of the law.
